A late summer 2010 afternoon's shadows and haze are cast on the Stanley Park Causeway, Coal Harbour, the Vancouver Convention Centre, and Canada Place. In the middle distance the orange cranes of the Centrium Container Terminal mark the place where once the Hastings Mill stood; the Rogers BC Sugar factory is just visible above it. The snow-capped mountain on the horizon, "Kulshan" in the Lummi language, was named Mount Baker by Captain Vancouver after his 3rd Lieutenant on HMS Discovery, who saw it first on 30 April 1792.
